

KING OF ROMANCE LIES IN 'FRISCO JAIL

Lying Is Nothing New to Him; He's Been at It for Many Years.

JOE MULHATTAN, PRINCE OF LIARS

Made Fortunes by His Wonderful Imagination and Lost Them by High Living and Having Good Time Generally.

A San Francisco special says: Joe Mulhatten, "King of Romancers," notorious throughout the United States as the "Prince of Liars," occupies a cell in the county jail at San Francisco.

Penniless and broken in health from protracted dissipation, Mulhatten walked into one of the leading hotels of the coast city and purchased the overcoat of a guest. The theft was discovered. His arrest followed, and he is being held for a hearing.

"The Prince of Fakers," as Mulhatten was known, was but one of a score of others who have made a career of the country with some of the most remarkable and extraordinary stories that ever appeared in print. Gifted with as keen and subtle an imagination as was ever possessed by man, Mulhatten invented stories that were almost inconceivable to the human mind. Wild and weird tales of the forests and thrilling adventures through the mountains, discoveries of mines containing fabulous riches, and hundreds of other ingenious fakes were the products of Mulhatten's imagination.

Lies Netted Him a Fortune.

These stirring tales he depicted with all the art of a master novelist, and sent them forth to editors in Atlantic coast cities, who, unfamiliar with the "wild and woolly" West, innocently accepted them for the truth. The public devoured them eagerly and many a man of means, who had been duped by Mulhatten's tales, in the selection of his own den, read his fabrications portrayed in print, laughed heartily, and treated the whole affair as a joke. These improbable stories netted Mulhatten thousands of dollars annually.

The scene of Mulhatten's hair raising and blood curdling yarns were in the vicinity of Arizona and New Mexico. In his imagination he pictured dark caverns and haunted houses, where he had come to grips with some hideous antediluvian monster, which, in a manner that Mulhatten would explain, had existed there for hundreds of years.

On some occasions Mulhatten would make a trip down into an unexplored portion of old Mexico and discover a gold mine abandoned by the Spaniards before the conquest of Mexico. The finding of skeletons of mammoths and other extinct animals would give a vivid description of every bone in the body of these ancient monsters and tell the date of birth and the manner of death.

Predicted World's End.

Usually the bones of a few hundred human beings were scattered about the animal's skeleton as mulattoes, and he would predict the world's ending furnished a Sunday story with illustrations, for many papers.

Never did Eastern editors discredit Mulhatten's tales. He was looked upon as a daring explorer and a gifted writer. His writings told of incidents in every part of Arizona and New Mexico. He was believed to be making many adventures trips in search of material. All the time, however, Mulhatten remained in the quiet seclusion of his home at Phoenix, wandering in realms of imagination and enjoying to the utmost his skill in the art of deception.

The stories were his own ideas. They were the original fiction, of course, but how did the public know? Few questioned the veracity of Mulhatten's tales. They were good reading matter, and, of course, must be truthful. Stories of a similar nature had never appeared before. Mulhatten, on the lookout for new material, had gone down to this remote part of the country. The idea of traveling through the desolate land in search of "color" had never occurred to other writers.

The incidents upon which Mulhatten founded his stories certainly were probable. Therefore Mulhatten must be telling the truth. So it was that Mulhatten, with cunning deceit, deluged Eastern editors with queries concerning stories. All of them were accepted and Mulhatten reaped a rich harvest.

Wrote About Everything.

For years Mulhatten thrived in this manner. He wrote about everything from a polar bear which had been caught wandering on the desert of Arizona to the finding of a medallion worn by Christopher Columbus, and he wrote about America. Mulhatten's stock of fakes finally became exhausted. He therefore shifted the scene of his artful vocation, going to Kansas. This injudicious move resulted in an exposure of Mulhatten's fake stories.

True, there are many strange people in Kansas, and remarkable things had happened there, but the State was not productive of such unusual things as the inventing of Mulhatten. Kansas had been too well advertised. Editors had heard of odd and singular events that had taken place in Kansas, and these had now become commonplace. Mulhatten removed to Topeka. His change of residence became known by his numerous queries directed to the East offering his stories. Then he began to write. He forwarded his stories to the same people who on former occasions had so eagerly sought them. But after a few had appeared in the public press, he became skeptical. Kansas was not so far west, and many of the people who read them were surrounded by the atmosphere when Mulhatten's imagination had drifted.

Branded as a Fakir.

The tales were branded as fakes. Mulhatten was branded as a fakir. His reputation went the rounds in the East. The market which had previously proved so lucrative to Mulhatten vanished. Mulhatten was flooded with letters from the editors whom he had deceived. He was denounced by the press all over the United States. "The Prince of Liars" then met his downfall.

Mulhatten began to flourish about twelve years ago, from that time on until the exposure in Kansas the country was flooded with stories from his imaginative mind. The clever yarns faked by him were the beginning of untruthful tales that have appeared at various times in some publications in the United States.

Treatment Free to the Sick and Afflicted.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(Special Correspondence)—Sealing is believing, and witnessing the seeming miracles performed by Prof. Wm. Wallace Hadley makes one exclaim: "Is there a known limit to this man's healing power?" Is there a single disease he cannot cure? Is there any case so hopeless that he cannot restore health?

Probably no other physician in the world treats as many patients as this famous professor of panopathy and physiatrics. They come to him by scores and hundreds. The sick and suffering, the lame and the consumptive and paralytic, the drug fiend, and the drunkard, invalids from almost every known disease form an endless procession seeking health at his hands. And this wonderful man, this wizard of science, this great-hearted physician, receives them—treats them—cures them. Heals them of diseases pronounced incurable by the medical profession. Cures them after they have been doomed to death by doctors, revives health and strength in the face of seeming impossibilities.

Not in the spirit of boasting or vanity, but in a quiet, calm statement of fact, he says there is no disease he may not cure. He says it, and what is more, proves it. During a recent talk with this man who has revolutionized the theory and practice of medicine, he said: "Thousands of precious human lives are needlessly sacrificed every year by useless medicines and brutal surgery that kill oftener than they cure. All upright members of the medical profession know this, whether they will admit it or not. It is time that the general public was made aware of the facts."

"Cases have come to me that have baffled some of the best physicians in the country; where one doctor has said the trouble was with the stomach, another said heart, still another diagnosed kidney disease or something else. But in each case I was able to see the real cause and by removing it I restored the patient to perfect health. I have known stomach trouble to be diagnosed as heart disease, and heart disease as rheumatism, and countless similar instances. When these mistakes are made, and the patient is treated for the wrong disease, how can the sufferer hope to get well? Is it any wonder that he grows weary of wearing eyeglasses. One is just about as sensible as the other. But I make a careful diagnosis of each case, and I come to the real cause and treat the real cause."

"I have discarded the useless drugs and medicines commonly prescribed by physicians and use a system of treatment that is as much superior to modern medical practice as the sun is to a candle. Now that I have perfected it after long years of practice and experiment, I find that I have the power to cure my patients without their coming to me or my going to them. For instance, read this letter from the Rev. Samuel Burton, an eminent divine of Washington, Ky. 'I feel that I am indebted to God that I was directed to you for relief from my bodily pains and ills. I feel sure that our Heavenly Father has directed you in working out the secret of power over disease. Your efforts must be accompanied by the Holy Spirit to accomplish such miraculous cures. I know and believe that there is nothing to equal your treatment for the release of suffering ones from pain, weakness and disease. I wish all suffering ones knew this power to heal. I do, and I am able to afford to do my share toward relieving the sufferings of mankind. And I am happy to give freely of my services wherever they are needed. I am especially anxious to cure my poor mortal who has been told that his or her case is incurable, that there is no hope left on earth. Or anyone who has grown weary spending money on drugs and doctors in a vain search for health. If they will write to me and accept my offer, there is not only hope, but an almost absolute certainty of recovery. I have been given the power to cure. I do not believe that I have the right to make anyone waste his money on useless drugs when I can heal him without them. I am all one duty to my fellow-men. We must all serve in one way or another. Where a rich man gives money, I give health. I am not a millionaire, but I am able to afford to do my share toward relieving the sufferings of mankind. And I am happy to give freely of my services wherever they are needed. I do not believe that I have the right to make anyone waste his money on useless drugs when I can heal him without them. I am all one duty to my fellow-men. We must all serve in one way or another. Where a rich man gives money, I give health. I am not a millionaire, but I am able to afford to do my share toward relieving the sufferings of mankind. And I am happy to give freely of my services wherever they are needed. I am especially anxious to cure my poor mortal who has been told that his or her case is incurable, that there is no hope left on earth. Or anyone who has grown weary spending money on drugs and doctors in a vain search for health. If they will write to me and accept my offer, there is not only hope, but an almost absolute certainty of recovery. I have been given the power to cure.
